STEELE ON THE STAND. He Admits the Story of His Treatment of Wild.

CHICAGO, March 24.—The court martial for the trial oi Lieut. Steele reassembled this morning after having been adjourned for two days on account of the death of Gen. Crooke. Lieut. Steele took the stand in his own behalf and told the story of his encounter with Wild substantially as it has heretofore been published. He admitted striking Wild and swearing at him. He was very angry with Wild; more so than he had ever before been with a private soldier. Wild's manner was highly insubordinate and insolent. Cross-examination failed to shake the lieutenant's testimony. Capt. Phelps, Lieut. Steele's superior officer, was then called and testified to Steele's bearing toward the men un-

An eminent English electrician and well known capitalists in London are behind the scheme. The object, it is stated, is to get electricity for transmission to cities and towns as a motive power and for lighting purposes. The lessees are to pay $25,000 yearly rent. A deposit of $10,000 has been made, which is to be forfeited unless a contract is finally closed, and park: provided, however, that the whole tract the balance of the first two years rent paid by

A MISTAKE OF NUMBERS. How the Railroad Accident at Portage Occurred.

BUFFALO, N.Y., March 24 .-- An official report of the wreck on the Western New York and Pennsylvania railroad near Portage, High Bridge, received by General Superintendent Bell, gives the following as a list their residence, as far as the same of the killed and injured: Killed-P. can be ascertained, and the court is then auof the killed and injured: Killed-P.

Riley, brakeman; G. Polson, brakeman. Injured-F. Ewart, fireman, concussion of brain, may die: J. McGuicken, a wiper, seriously; John Stout and J. W. Warner, engineers, scalded, not seriously; W. H. Godfrey, conductor of the accommodation, head hurt and one rib broken, not serious; two young women named O'Brien, passengers on accommodation, slightly injured. General Superintendent Bell will visit the scene of the accident this morning and will then go to Olean, where the company will make an investigation. The responsibility lies between the dispatcher at Olean, the operator at Rosburg and the engineer of the freight, The dispatcher gave orders for freight trains No. 285 and 286 to meet at Nunda The order for 285 was sent to Rosburg and that for 286 to Mount Morris. The order to 285 appears to have been read to meet train 206 (the accommodation) instead of 286 at Nunda, so that instead of waiting at Portageville for the passenger train, which had the right of way, the freight passed Portageville and the collision followed. Whether the operator got 206 for 286 or the engineer misread it will be learned at the investigation. The inquest will probably be held at Nunda.

THE FLACK SENTENCE. Judge Barrett Postpones it Until Next

Friday-A Reporter in Trouble. New York, March 24,-Judge Barrett in the court of over and terminer this morning postponed sentence in the cases of Sheriff Flack, his son William and Lawyer Meeks until next Friday, when he will hear what their counsel has to say. Flack looked stolid as usual, and if his position was felt by him there was no indication in his expressionless face of the fact. The son looked more composed than on Saturday night, when he heard the verdict of the jury. Lawyer Joseph Meeks seemed cheerful and at once got into conversation with a number of friends. Argument on their behalf will be heard on Wednesday next from their lawyers. Reporter

Choate, who was found in the jury room while they were considering their verdict, will on Friday be required to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt.

> DIFFERENCES IN THE BILL. This bill, as has been stated in THE STAR, differs from the one which passed the Senate January 28, in dividing the original appropriation of $1,200,000 between the United States and the District and in naming the park Columbus Memorial park.

MR. GROUT SUBMITS THE REPORT. Mr. Grout in his opening remarks said that the project of establishing such a park was ompleted. The Atlantic fisheries question had so familiar to the House that it was unnecessary to go into any extended remarks. He would for the present then merely submit the report from the committee on the subject. The report, which has been printed in THE STAR, was then read. Considerable discussion followed as to the length of time to be given up to general debate. No time was, however, set for closing

NO GREAT OUTLAY AT PRESENT. Mr. McCreary wanted Mr. Grout to explain what the exact expenditure would be originally and what would be required annually to keep the park up and to develop it.

Gen. Grout replied that there was no idea of spending any fabulous sum within the next few years in developing the park. It was expected to be for the future. The land could not be obtained at any future time as cheaply as at present. It was expected that in the next two years only about $25,000 would be asked for in order to open a few drives and roads.

A MATTER OF THE FUTURE. Mr. Cannon followed in a short talk explaining the beauties of the situation and arguing that the ground should be obtained at once, and then he was perfectly willing to have the development of the park rest with the future. BENEFITS TO ADJACENT PROPERTY.

Mr. Payson asked if the committee had con sidered a proposition to charge a large part of Mr. Grout replied that the committee had lers said he represented the defendants.

considered the proposition but had some doubts as to the constitutionality of the plan, but if the gentleman from Illinois and other good lawyers on the floor thought it could be done it would receive no opposition from him, as he recognized the objection to enhancing the value of so much property without proper recompense to the District.

Mr. Payson remarked that at the proper time he would offer an amendment to this FAVORED UNANIMOUSLY BY CITIZENS.

In answer to another question Gen. Grout said that the committee had learned to their full satisfaction that the citizens of the District

Lee Quong Fatally Wounds "Black Tom," a Negro Burglar.

THE VICTIM HAD ENTERED A LAUNDRY ABOUT MIDNIGHT AND ITS OCCUPANTS AWORE WHEN HE FIRED AT THEM-THEY RETURNED THE COMPLI-MENT WITH EFFECT.

"How do you feel this morning?" inquired Lieut, Kelly of the Chinese occupant of a cell in the sixth precinct this morning.

"I feel velly bad, velly bad," was his reply. The Chinaman was Lee Quong, a laundryman, who was held on a charge of inflicting fatal injuries on an alleged desperate negro burglar known as "Black Tom," but whose right name is said to be George Carter. ' He also travels under the alias of Thomas Thomp-

Every Sunday night all the Chinamen in the city lock up their establishments and go in a body to visit one of their number and spend the evening with him. They do not usually return home until midnight or later and Carter, it is alleged, has heretofore taken advantage of their absence and robbed a number of the laundries from time to time. Last night, it is stated, he had robbed four laundries and was burglarizing the fifth when he received two pistol snot wounds that it is thought will surely prove fatal BLACK TOM'S BURGLARIOUS EXPLOITS LAST NIGHT.

The first places Black Tom is said to have visited last night were those of Moy Jim Lee and Jim Kee at No. 1219 and 1221 7th street northwest. About $20 and a satchel were taken from these rooms. The next place on the route was the laundry of Moy Yeun, No. 214 H street. The burglar, it is stated, entered the adjoining yard, jumped over the fence and broke open the back door. He then ransacked the back room and secured more than $20 from the money drawer. Mrs. Brown, who occupies the rooms over the laundry, heard the noise, but she paid no attention to it, because she thought the Chinamen were returning home. It was then shortly after 10 o'clock. The party had not then broken up and Carter was not in danger of apprehension. He succeeded so well that, it is said, he then went to Moy Foon's, No. 312 3d street, and also secured some plunder.

HIS LAST MIDNIGHT BURGLARY. The hour of midnight had been tolled on the city bells and "Black Tom" wended his way to the Ashton house. He had no idea, probably, for the place and it is understood that the that the Chinamen had returned and expected change will be made at an early day. the Ashton house. He had no idea, probably, to make an easy haul, as he had at the other places, and depart unmolested. His anticipations, however, were not realized, for Lee Quong and his cousins, Lee Sing and Lee Kipp, returned home earlier than usual. The laundry is in No. 313 Pennsylvania avenue, and the upper portion of the house is occupied as a boarding house known as the Ashton house. The apartments occupied by the Chinamen were formerly two rooms, but small partitions subdivide four distinct rooms. The small front into room is where the business is conducted, and just behind the front partition are two bunks on which the almond-eyed Celestials rest their weary bodies. The next room is a much larger one and is used as a cooking and dining room. In the last room is piled all sorts of rubbish and the clothes are also washed in it. It was somewhere near 11:30 o'clock when were then ready for a good night's rest and it took them but a few minutes to get into "dream lan 1." SLEEPERS AROUSED. About midnight there was a noise heard in the rooms, which awakened one of the Chinamen. One Lee nudged another and asked: "Who there? Listen," Then Lee Quong sat pulled the red bunk covering over them. They

up in his bed and picked up a "Frontier" 44caliber revolver.

The negro burglar heard the Chinaman ask 'Who there?" and knowing he would not stand much chance among the Celestials fired one shot either to scare or kill and Lee Quong returned the fire. The pegro and Chinamen were both in darkness and the only light in the window from the electric light outside.

BLACK TOM'S FIRE RETURNED. The murderous burglar received the large bullet from the Chinaman's revolver in the back and then jumped behind the wooden partition to save himself from further injury, but Lee Quong fired against the partition and that bullet entered the burglar's body near the spinal column. A third shot was fired by the hinaman, but it did not take effect. The bullet that went through the partition also passed through the top of a tin boiler and a theatrical sign board of wood before it took effect in the burglar's body. The badly wounded negro made his way from the Chinese quarters fell to the pavement with a cry of "My God; I'm killed."

The negro was picked up by the persons attracted by the shooting and placed in the door-way of the hotel. Policeman Mansfield and Sergeant Boyle were soon on hand and Lee Quong was arrested. He then knew for the first time that his shots had taken effect.

THE WOUNDED MAN. Dr. Hickling was called to attend the wounded man, but his condition was such that nothing could be done for him there, and at the street and the carriage struck a lamp the doctor's suggestion the police ambulance came and removed him to Freedman's hospital. A BADLY FRIGHTENED CHINAMAN. The Chinaman was a badly frightened man when he entered the station house and thought he would have to suffer severely for the shots, but the officers assured him that beyond spending a short time in the police cell until the affair was investigated no harm was likely to befall him. The police were disposed to praise rather than condemn him for what he had done. Quong could not tell of but one shot that he had fired, although Carter's coat shows THE BURGLAR CARRIED TWO PISTOLS.

The condition of the wounded man was so critical when he arrived at the hospital that the doctors were afraid to probe for the balls. When the negro was examined the officers found two revolvers and an oyster knife on him. The knife, it is thought, was used in opening doors, trunks, &c., at the places he robbed. One of the revolvers was a Smith & Wesson, and that one he used to shoot at the Chinamen. The other weapon was the property of Moy Yeun, and had just been taken from his place. This morning all the reports of the robberies were made to the po-lice and they were satisfied that Carter had learn if possible who were his accomplices. working with him, because he had disposed of all the money he had taken. THE ALLEGED ACCOMPLICE OF THE BURGLAR ARRESTED. Policeman John Daley went to the hospital and got a confession from the dying man, who boy. The officer then went to Hunter's house at 9th and Q streets and placed him under arrest. In the house the officer found considerable money, a number Chinese coins and a cross made the coins. Among the boy's effects were about one hundred keys of all descriptions and also some collars that bore marks of a Chinese laundry. The boy's parents knew nothing of their son's conduct nor did they know anything about the property found. When taken to the station the boy made a statement implicating another boy, but Carter says that Hunter was the only one who was with him.

When Officer Daley searched Carter's clothing this morning he found a flattened bullet in one of the overcoat pockets. It is thought that that is the bullet that went through the coat, but did not enter his body. THE PRISONER. Lee Quong is thirty-three years old. He

Some Talk of, Coming Changes After the Appropriation Bill is Passed.

The clerks at the District building are breathing easier again. The flurry caused some days ago by the transfer of the assessor and the reduction of several other employes as well as the removal of another clerk has about died away. "FAKED" TELEGRAMS. One Plan to Kill Off Applicants for Office-But it Didn't Work.

A rather curious instance of political methods was recently brought to light in the Post Office department. A number of telegrams received from citizens of a was western city, as supposed, protesting against the appointment of one of the liceman Jordan of what had occurred. The ofcandidates for the position of postmaster of the city. These telegrams were filed away with the papers in the case and letters were sent out addressed to the men whose signatures were attached to the telegrams, acknowledging their receipt. In a few days every one of five letters was sent back to the Post Office department with the information that the persons addressed could not be found. Then it was learned that the telegrams had been "faked" and were all probably sent out by one man in the hope that the depart-ment would conclude that there was such a feeling among the citizens against the appointment of the candidate named that it would be unwise to give him the appointment. It is probable that the fraud would eventually have been discovered any way as the papers in such cases are always carefully exmined by the various candidates and their friends, but the case illustrates how far the rivalry for these places will induce men to go.

Recently THE STAR referred to the case of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Neill Dumont and his refusal to sign an information charging a certain individual with a violation of law, for the reason that the officer swearing to the information did not present it in due time. The officer reported the facts to his lieutenant and the report was forwarded to the Commissioners, who requested Mr. Dumont to send them an explanation of the case. The officer today submitted his report, in which he says, after going over the case at some length, that the information was presented to him when he was engaged in hearing a case, and that he resented the interruption by handing the paper back and asking the officer why he could not appear for that business sooner. George McCauley and Frank Cronin, two noted Washington burglars who have done time in the jail and also at Albany penitentiary, were in the Police Court this afternoon on charges of suspicion and housebreaking. Me-Cauley is about fifty years old and the police say he has trained many boys in his nefarious work. He has served nearly half his life behind prison bars. He served time for robbing Archer's store on 4% street of hardware and also for other robberies. On one occasion when he received a six years sentence his reply to the court was: "You old gray-haired . I can stand on my head that long." His sentence was increased to eight years.

Frank Cronin served time for robbing a Con gressman of some clothing. IN THE HOUSE BUT GOT NO PLUNDER.

The alleged offense on which they are now held was committed shortly after 12 o'clock yesterday morning. Theodore M. Brown, treasurer for a theatrical company, made the complaint against them. He has been staying at the house of Mrs. Roseberry, No. 624 Pennsylvania avenue. When he went to his room late Saturday night two men, presumably the prisoners, followed him. Soon after putting his money safely away he retired. The house was entered and one of the burglars got into Mrs. Roseberry's son's room. The sight of a stranger in the room frightened the young man so badly that he did not make an outery. One of them went down stairs while the other proceeded to Mr. Brown's room, Mr. Brown awoke and watched the intruder, who failed to find what he was looking for and then he left THE ARREST. When he reached his partner on the street Mr. Brown hastened down and informed Poficer "shadowed" the men until he met Officer Costello. The two men walked down as far as No. 476 Pennsylvania avenue and stepped into the docrway of that house. The officers then arrested them and locked them up, On the charge of suspicion they were given sixty days in the work house. McCauley and Cronin were held for the grand
